Work On Westerly Town Building

Begun by Contractor Monday-Site Staked Out-Death of Christopher L. Stillman-Aerial Machine Patent For Local Man-Fixing Boundary Lines For Location of New Post Office.

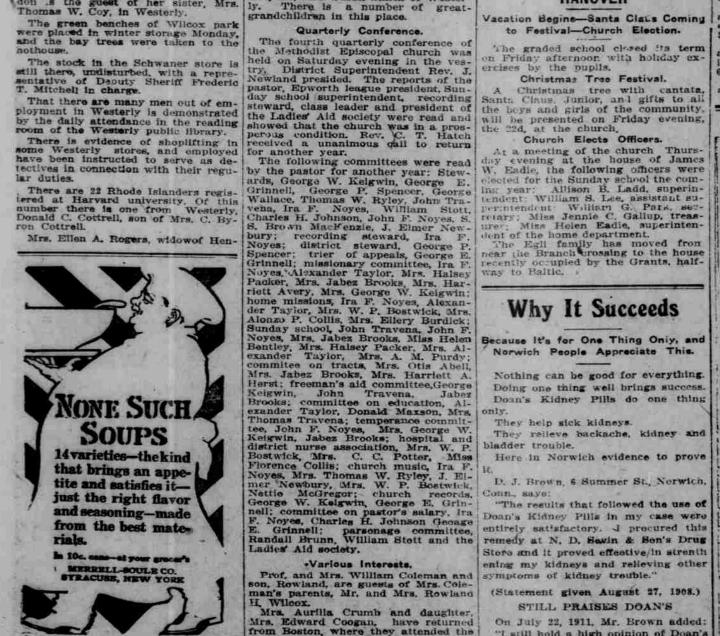

Civil Engineer Thomas McKenzie, assisted by Civil Engineer George W. Woodward, staked out the new town building and court house Monday. The stubs and batter boards are in position and all is in readiness for excavation for the foundation work. William will be contract for $88,000, was awarded the contract for $88,000, was awarded the contract for $88,000 was awarded the contract work in the preliminary work. He was accompanied by Frank H. Foley, also of Providence, who will have general supervision of the work. Mr. Foley has had considerable experience in building and general contract work and will spend the greater part of his time in Westerly until the building is completed in February, 1912. He will sublet as much of the preparatory work as possible to local contractors and employ as many local workmen as practicable. Mr. Foley bardened the construction of the railroad from Broton to Allyn's Point eleven years ago, the nearest work to Westerly in which he was ever interested. Monday was the first day Mr. Foley spent in Westerly.

The Nestor house, so-called, becomes the property of the contractors and removed. The Westerly red granite to be used in the construction of the new building, is to be furnished by the New England Granite Works, and will be used for office and storage purposes until the new building is completed, and will then be razed and removed. The Westerly red granite to be used in the construction of the new postoffice building. The two large woulding, is to be furnished by the New England Granite Works, and will be delivered as required and without any delay in the construction work.

Christopher L. Stillman, one of the clidest machinists in the employ of the C. B. Cottrell Sons' company, died at his home, in High street, Monday morning, in his 78th year, having been born in Hopkinton, March 22, 1834. Mr. Stillman went back and forth to the shop regularly until about three months ago, the Cutrells gratifying his ambition to work by giving him the easiest possible employment, he preferring work rather than voluntary pension. Mrs. Stillman and two daughters died many years age and Mr. Stillman lived alone in the former home of his father. He was a consistent member of the Seventh Day Baptist church and led a very quiet and honorable life. He is survived by one forother, David Frank Stillman, bookkeeper for the Industrial Trust company.

The joint commission on the town hall and court building have not yet selected an inspector in connection with the work. So far as known, the only applicant for the place is J. Irving Maxson. He presented his application to the town council several weeks ago and it was referred to the building commission.

All differences between the town of Westerly and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, in connection with the extensive railroad improvement now in progress, have been amicably adjusted, including the elimination of the Canal street crossing. When this is completed the town will pay $20,000 to the railroad company.

BUT VALUES GREATER

An Increase of About $190,000,000 Over Last Year's Values.

Washington, Dec. 18.—With decreases in the production of the eleven important farm crops, not including cotton, the total value of these crops this year reached the total of $5,769,562,000, according to the final estimate announced today by the department of agriculture. This is an increase of almost $190,000,000 over their value last year. The department's final estimate of production today differs considerably from its preliminary estimate made in November because of a revision of the acreages based upon the census bureau's figures which became available since that time. The important features of the different crops, compared with last year, were:

Corn. an increase of 1,790,000 in acreage, a decrease of $34,772,000 bushels in production and an increase of $183,441,000 in value.
